

The Wild World of Dogs

In this _____ edition of the Wild World of Dogs, we'll be _____ (adjective) (verb ending in -ing)
the behaviors of the common North American Riley. This _____ species (adjective)
is often identified by his vacant _____, _____ shedding, and fondness (noun) (adjective)
for _____. _____ observers, though, will also be able to _____ him (food) (adjective) (verb)
by his long list of fears. _____ are still adding to the list, but a small (Occupation, plural)
sample includes: _____, _____, _____, _____, (plural noun) (plural noun) (plural noun) (adjective) (plural noun)
_____, _____, _____, _____, and sometimes his (plural noun) (plural noun) (adjective) (plural noun) own feet. Observe how, when confronted with any one of these _____,
(plural noun)
he will cautiously hide behind a nearby _____, _____ his ears down, (noun) (verb)
and begin nervously licking his _____. This telltale behavior in the face (plural noun)
of nearly any object is one of the most _____ ways of _____ a (adjective) (verb ending in -ing)
North American Riley in the wild. That wraps up today's _____ - we'll see (noun)
you next time on the Wild World of _____!
(Animal, plural)